

Serious tests, sweet treats at AGC Safety Fair

Have you ever wanted to don a cold-water immersion suit to see how difficult it might be to do in the middle of a storm? Test your reaction to an earthquake you know is not real? Learn about fall protection by harnessing up and being dropped?

Dozens of families took the opportunity to test their mettle at these and other booths July 31 at the Safety Fair organized by the AGC Safety Committee and held in the parking lot of Davis Constructors & Engineers in Anchorage. The family-friendly event included a free barbecue and AGC's annual root beer float extravaganza. Attendees took home loads of goodies and had a chance to win several door prizes, including a barbecue grill donated by ENSTAR Natural Gas.

The lucky winner of the Weber grill was Summit Larson. She might or might not let her dad, Trent Larson, use it once a while. The AGC Safety Committee would like to say "thank you" to all attendees, volunteers and committee members who attended. 🧢
